Skagit Valley College engineering student Angela Chan served chicken and potato curry Thursday during an international foods taste test during lunch hour at the college in Mount Vernon. The event was scheduled for the Chinese New Year. Chan decorated the Cardinal Center with red and gold decorations, and other students handed out traditional red envelopes with pennies and candy. The celebration is just one of several international-themed events for GlobalFest, which runs through the end of February. Next week, the college is holding "Global Service Week," featuring presentations from organizations working around the world providing social services. For more information, visit www.skagit.edu.
